

Support Successful Aging

Join the OASIS Legacy Circle

Reaching for the stars is nothing new to Wayne Yee. As an aeronautical engineer, Wayne worked at companies that helped build the space shuttle, Air Force One and some of the first high altitude unmanned vehicles. He recently took steps to help others pursue their own dreams when he updated his will.

Wayne decided to include OASIS in his will when he reflected on the organizations that made a difference in his life. Since he retired in 1995, Wayne has been a regular participant at OASIS. He has facilitated the Men's Discussion Group and has been a peer support volunteer.

"Volunteering through OASIS has resulted in many long lasting friendships, which I cherish," said Wayne. "OASIS has taught me that staying physically and mentally active are interrelated and that giving back to others can be very rewarding. For me, these are the keys to successful aging."

Wayne suggested that others who are updating their estate plans might consider including their favorite organizations. "It was really quite easy. I read in an OASIS publication that I could include OASIS in my will and called the number provided to get the correct language. My attorney took care of the rest."

As a Legacy Circle Member, Wayne has ensured through his bequest that his legacy will help others age successfully while they keep reaching for the stars.

Becoming an OASIS Legacy Circle Member

If you wish to include OASIS as a beneficiary, the specific language for your will could be as follows:
